WHAT IS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

Domestic violence is a pattern of abusive behavior in any relationship that is used by one partner male or female to gain or maintain power and control. This applies to current or former spouses, couples who share children, or current or former intimate partners with whom the abuser shares or has shared a common domicile. Domestic violence can be physical, sexual, emotional, economic, or psychological actions or threats of actions that influence another person. This includes any behaviors that intimidate, manipulate, humiliate, isolate, frighten, terrorize, coerce, threaten, blame, hurt, injure, or wound someone.

REPORTING OPTIONS FOR VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

The Department of Defense is committed to addressing and ending domestic abuse and offers victims two different reporting options for seeking help. With either option, victims have access to victim advocacy services, counseling and medical care. Victims of domestic abuse may want to talk to a Domestic Abuse Victim Advocate from the Family Advocacy Program about their options and other sources of support before making a decision.

• Restricted reporting

Victims who prefer confidential assistance that does not include notification to law enforcement or military command may contact a FAP supervisor, clinician, victim advocate or a health care provider to request a "restricted report." A restricted report allows victims to evaluate their relationship choices while maintaining control over what and how much information to share with others. Because victim safety is a priority, victims at imminent risk of serious harm cannot use the restricted report option. The restricted report option does not apply to child abuse cases or instances in which a child has witnessed domestic abuse.

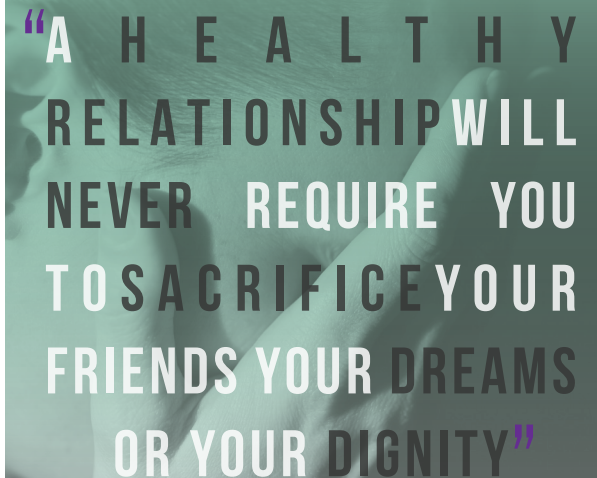

A victim of domestic abuse who makes a restricted report may receive victim advocacy services without law enforcement notification or command involvement. Victim advocacy services include assistance in developing a safety plan to prevent further abuse, information about military and civilian protective orders, and accompaniment to meetings, medical and court appointments and information about military and civilian medical, legal and community resources.

ALONE

• Unrestricted reporting

Victims may contact the FAP, military police or chain of command to make an "unrestricted report" if they want an investigation of an abuse incident and command involvement. The command can offer the victim added support and protection to include protective orders. An unrestricted report also gives the command the discretion to take administrative action against the offender.

For victims who choose to make an unrestricted report, a FAP advocate will also assist victims in making a report to law enforcement, by providing information on legal rights and offering assistance in applying for transitional compensation, if applicable.
